HOOVER LAYS DOWN RULE ON WAR DEBT CUTS

Will Consider Reductions Only If Europe Curtails Armament.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED

That Is View of Situation as He Will Present It to Premier Laval.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Reductions of war debt payments will be considered by the United States only if European nations in turn effect drastic curtailments of armament.

President Hoover intends that the two subjects shall remain undubitably linked. In his approaching conferences with Premier Laval of France he expects to press his views that disarmament and a naval holiday can not be logically separated from the question of war debts and the world financial condition.

There had been no indication, however, that the administration would enter into a complete revision of war debts.

Makes Attitude Clear

Mr. Hoover recalled only Tuesday night at his conference with congressional leaders that in proposing the inter-governmental debt moratorium he had opposed cancellation of war debts.

The chief executive's attitude has become increasingly clear here as the time nears when Premier Laval will depart for his epochal visit to this country.

Just yesterday, President Hoover again voiced his emphatic disagreement with outlays for armaments at the expense of productive enterprises.

In an address before the fourth Pan-American commercial conference he pointed his attack at loans to nations for balancing budgets, or for military equipment or war war purposes.

Almost as he spoke, the coming Anglo-French discussions were the subject of a conference in Paris, between Premier Laval and Lord Reading, British foreign secretary. Laval said it was "devoted to a frank and complete exchange of views of the world situation and the measures best adapted to the amelioration of existing conditions."

Meanwhile, two high officials of the Bank of France left for this country to study in advance proposals of President Hoover.

From the head of one of France's greatest banks came the assertion

MARION SECOND IN ADD-A-PHONE DRIVE

Local Company Gains 195 New Subscribers in Statewide Contest.

The Marion district of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. added 195 subscribers and sold many extensions and service additions in the last 30 days in an add-a-phone drive made by the company's employes, A. J. Berry, local manager, announced this morning. Of the five districts of the state, Marion ranked second in results obtained, with its quota subscribed 280 percent. In the state, 1,536 subscribers were added.

The Marion district includes exchanges in Marion, Waldo, LaRue, Morral, Green Camp, Nevada, Richwood, Amanda, Prospect and Harpster.

First prize in the drive contest in this division was won by Ralph Bennett of Marion; second by Harry Zink of Marion, and third by Agnes Hanneman also of Marion. Their prizes were $25, $12 and $6 respectively.

Company employes canvassed the entire district for new subscribers, Mr. Berry said. The local company is a subsidiary of the Associated Telephone Utility Co., operating 550,000 telephones in 9,000 exchanges located in 25 states.

WORKMEN STRIKE WHEN PAY IS CUT

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 9—More than 25,000 jobs went begging in Massachusetts today as workers, incensed by announced reductions in wages or by unsatisfactory working conditions, walked the streets on strike.

The strike movement, having its center in the textile city of Lawrence where approximately 22,000 men and women left their looms and benches rather than accept a 10 percent reduction of wages, today had spread to other centers. In Boston approximately 3,000 longshoremen were refusing to handle cargo on the coastal and foreign vessels although the scale of wages covered with the ship owners was not entirely a matter of wages but involved work periods, safety of working conditions,

SCENE AT MORROW RITES

The steepled Presbyterian church at Englewood, N. J., was the rendezvous for some of the nation's mightiest men who came to pay a last tribute to the memory of U. S. Senator Dwight W. Morrow. Bankers, brokers, diplomats and statesmen bowed in grief before the bier of the man who won the respect of all with whom he came in contact. Photo shows the casket leaving the church after the funeral services.

Forget-Me-Nots To Aid Disabled War Veterans

Organization has been completed for the annual forget-me-not drive Saturday by Marion Chapter No. 22, Disabled American Veterans. Mayor L. Don Jones has issued a proclamation which reads as follows:

"I, Mayor L. Don Jones, do hereby heartily indorse the Forget-Me-Not drive to be conducted Saturday, Oct. 10 by Marion Chapter No. 22, Disabled American Veterans of the World War and I trust that all Marion citizens will join me in extending their utmost support."

Open Headquarters

Headquarters for the drive will be established in the sheriff's office in the courthouse, with Rev. B. E. Hillman, general chairman of the drive, in charge. To attract attention to the drive, a machine gun nest will be built on the courthouse square, with forget-me-nots on sale all day. Ivan B. Wittbinger and Clayton Hartley will direct activities at the nest.

Marion will be divided into four sections, with Main and Center streets the dividing point. Dr. J. W. McMurray, will supervise the workers. Mrs. E. W. Koeppen, Miss Muriel McMurray and Miss Virginia Sullivan are three of the team captains. The fourth will be appointed later.

The forget-me-not drive is held each year for the purpose of raising funds to support a national system of rehabilitation officers who act as free, skilled assistants for disabled men, their mothers, fathers, wives and children and the

DEATH DRAWS NEARER EDISON

Inventor Passes Into Stupor Regarded as Forerunner of Final Coma.

By The Associated Press

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 9—Thomas A. Edison slipped into a stupor today and death crept nearer to his bedside.

The world-famous inventor, hitherto an extremely light sleeper, was found to be in an unnaturally deep slumber this morning. At breakfast time he was aroused with difficulty. A stupor, forerunner of the coma from which a patient cannot be awakened, had gripped him.

He was persuaded to take a few spoonfuls of cereal, but not hardly enough to combat the uremic poisoning which is combining with three other ailments to sap his strength day by day. Last night he took nothing and all day yesterday he went practically without nourishment.

"Mr. Edison spent a more quiet night, sleeping soundly," said a bulletin issued this morning by Dr. Hubert S. Howe, his physician. "This morning he roused sufficiently to take a few spoonfuls of nourishment. He is, however, gradually losing ground."

Later Dr. Howe told reporters about the stupor.

"I don't think his death is imminent, although I would not be surprised if I received an emergency call at any time," the physician said.

After the doctor's bulletin had been issued, Mrs. Edison, and of countenance, strolled with him through the estate. With head bowed, she directed a gardener to pick a bouquet from her flower garden for the physician.

President Hoover and Pope Pius XI were informed of the latest developments in the inventor's illness.

New York and New Jersey police arranged today to furnish a motorcycle escort to Dr. Howe during his frequent trips to the Edison estate, because Dr. Howe might be called at any moment of the day or night to speed to the inventor's bedside.

The entire Edison family was at West Orange today, the daughter, Mrs. Marion Oser, arrived from Norwalk, Conn., completing the family group. Charles Edison, son, remained throughout the day. None of the family would discuss Thomas Edison or Dr. Howe's visits to the bedside.

IMPROVED KITCHENS THEME OF SCHOOL

Miss Ferguson Will Prepare Dishes Amid Model Surroundings.

The improvement of the kitchen, the proper cooking and serving of good food and the planning of menus, all influence the well being of a household and the Marion Star cooking school which opens Tuesday afternoon in The Star auditorium, has been planned with these in mind.

Miss Edna Ferguson

Miss Edna Ferguson, a graduate of the McDonald Institute at Guelph, Ontario, and in domestic science at Columbia university, is a food and home making authority. She has conducted cooking schools in practically every part of the United States and has discussed home making questions with thousands of women.

She will talk Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons from the model kitchen in the auditorium platform and will prepare novel and delicious dishes at every session. In addition to giving away the actual dishes she prepares, she will give an outline of planning and the preparation of

CARDINALS, A'S NEAR END OF WORLD SERIES

St. Louis Needs Only Victory Today To Win Baseball Championship.

DERRINGER VS. EARNSHAW

Mack Depends on Right-hander To Square Games at Three Each.

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 9—The principals in each corner today with the world series drama nearing its grand climax, were John Leonard (Pepper) Martin and George Livingston (The Big Moose) Earnshaw, with baseball's greatest prize at stake.

The sun was shining brightly in a clear sky early today and the weather forecast for the sixth game of the series was "fair and somewhat warmer."

The game loomed as one of the "naturals" of a sporting decade, whether Earnshaw went back to the firing line for the Athletics today to check the St. Louis Cardinals or was withheld for a possible seventh game, tomorrow, on the theory Lefty Grove could be depended upon to beat Paul Derringer again and square the count at three games each.

A Dramatic Finish

The Martin bomber leader of the Cardinals' flying squadron, twice has flown into action against Earnshaw, the famous righthand ace of the world champions, in as dramatic a baseball show as the national game has known since Walter Johnson pulled the Senators through to victory in 1924.

They have broken even, so far as the results are concerned, although Martin has had much the better of the duel, so far as his personal score against Earnshaw is involved.

The first time they were introduced, Martin literally "stole" the game from the A's star by capping two hits, stealing two bases and scoring the only two runs of the game.

On their next passage at arms, Martin alone stood between the giant Earnshaw and a no-hit triumph, by gathering the only two hits big George yielded in blanking the National league champions.

So it was not in the least strange either to the excited local populace or the national baseball public at large, today, to figure the chance of the high-flying Cardinals and the harassed Athletics in terms of the marvelous Martin and the great Earnshaw.

Depends on "Jarge"

Earnshaw was the hero of the 1930 world series, gaining credit for two victories and paving the way for another over the Red Birds. He has again proved the only member of Connie Mack's staff able to throttle the Cardinals—all, that is, except the pepper-pot.

Martin is the hero of the 1931 series by so many kilometers, to date, that even the peerless Paavo Nurmi would hesitate to run them. There has been nothing in all the history of baseball like this youth's rampage at bat and on the bases, with the game's highest honors at stake. The truth about Martin, as most everyone knows by now, is stranger than fiction.

He has tied the world series batting records. He has an excellent chance to break six records, unless Earnshaw or Grove contrive by some miracle to check this "Wild Horse of the Osage" this afternoon.

Depend on Rookie

The Cardinals relied on Martin and their other outstanding "freshman," Derringer, right-handed pitcher, to beat Earnshaw. Al Simmons, the rest of the Athletics and give St. Louis, as well as the National league, its first world championship in five years.

The Cardinals returned from the east, leading by three games to two, after a succession of thrilling engagements with the club that has been called the greatest Connie Mack ever put together.

They needed only one more victory to clinch the winners' share of the spoils, representing a difference of about $1,000 per man.

Derringer's selection for a return assignment in the box, despite his setback in the opener, came as a surprise. It was believed the Cardinals, with two chances to win the series, would send Grover Cleveland Alexander, Burleigh Grimes and Bill Hallahan, in that order. Any pitching choice is problematical, as Mack's staff, with Derringer, Grimes, Alexander, Hallahan, Wilcox and Bill Walker, is loaded with left-handers.

MOBILIZING THEIR MILLIONS

Mobilizing to combat the "destructive forces" threatening the nation's economic structure, New York's foremost bankers, led by these three men, pledged liberal cooperation with the government's relief measures. This trio is already busily planning its work to help administer the $500,000,000 Hoover credit plan. Charles D. Mitchell (right) is head of the mammoth National City bank of New York; Albert H. Wiggin (left) is a governing executive of the huge Chase National bank of New York and Thomas W. Lamont (below) is one of the most influential Morgan partners.

APPEAL WON BY DAUGHERTY

Former Bank Head, Under Prison Sentence, Granted New Trial.

By The Associated Press

WARRINGTON C. H., O., Oct. 9—Mal S. Daugherty, former head of the defunct Ohio State bank here, was granted a new trial on charges of misapplying funds by the Ninth district court of appeals today. He was under sentence of 10 years in prison and a fine of $5,000. Daugherty is a brother of former U. S. Attorney General Harry Daugherty.

The three judges of the Ninth district court of appeals, which was assigned to hear the case, concurred in declaring there had been gross error in the charge to the jury in the common pleas court trial. The judgment was against the weight of evidence the opinion holds.

The appellate jurists also declared the common pleas trial judge should have dismissed one of the five counts, one that alleged Daugherty had misapplied credit of the bank.

The appellate judges, W. E. Pardee of Akron, Rose W. Funk of Wooster, and C. J. Washburn of Elyria, heard the appeal Sept. 14.

Daugherty has been at liberty under $42,000 bond.

Daugherty was indicted on 87 counts, charging misapplication of funds and making false reports of the bank's condition. As a result of the closing of the bank Daugherty filed a petition in bankruptcy which has never been finally adjudicated.

How Do Dancers Manage?

The professional engagements of a dancer make no allowance for the trying time of a woman's monthly sickness. Yet her menstruating must not interfere with her easy, effortless performance. Such women do not "fight" periodic pain, but avoid it. They use Midol, and do not suffer even a twinge of menstrual pain. Why don't you meet these monthly emergencies with this remarkable modern discovery?

Midol takes pain off the calendar. Monthly martyrdom is foolish. For Midol is as harmless as the aspirin tablet you take for your headache! All drug stores; just ask for Midol.

"Don't talk nonsense!" Dicky said, shortly "and come on, get busy. I'll steer you girls over."

He took an arm of each of us and we went out of the door and down the steps across the yard to the orchard where my studio bungalow had the air of waiting for me. Dicky turned back at the door.

"Telephone or sound the fire siren if you need me," he said. "Until you do, Harry and I will mick around and see what news there is from the sick room."

They Finally "Click"

He left us and Lillian led the way into the little emergency "living-room," at the back of the big verandah and closed the door.

"I've no yen to have an audience while we're going through our vocal exercises," she said with a wry grin.

I acknowledged her wisdom when having settled ourselves in comfortable chairs, opposite each other, we began comparing the queer jargon with which I had charged my memory and which she had transcribed in shorthand. Even with the shadow of death hanging over the room in the farmhouse, where the battered Chinese was hovering on the borderline between time and eternity, Lillian and I could not restrain our laughter at the queer sounds we were making. We salved our consciences, however, with the thought that our merriment was more than half hysteria, and held no hint in it of irreverence toward death.

"It clicks," Lillian said finally, when we had gone over the thing for the seventh or eighth time. "We sound like twins speaking a piece. We'll do — for now — don't you think?"

"Yes," I agreed, "but I think we ought to go over it together two or three times a day until Harry gets a chance to have his Chinese friend hear us. Does he really expect us to go into the city to go over this before his Chinese friend?"

"If he does, he'll have to change his mind," Lillian said quickly. "I know who the friend is. He's a man of position and wealth and culture and a great sense of his own dignity and it'll take a lot of pow-wowing to persuade him to come out here for a few hours, but it must be done and Harry's the lad to do it. I've heard it said of him that he chipped a piece off the Blarney Stone, when he was traveling through Ireland, and has kept it in his pocket ever since. He'll be able to turn the trick if anybody can but neither of us is going to leave the farmhouse till this particular flurry is over."

Calling Dicky

She rose from her chair, stretched her arms above her head and flexed them, then, dropping them to her side, came to my side and looked down at me intently.

"Suppose we call the boys over and get this thing settled," she said. "We're facing a rather complicated situation, you know."

"Yes," I nodded in quick assent. "Will you telephone, or shall I?"

"If you think Dicky won't object to my touching the sacred instrument," she said, with a grin, which I returned, for Dicky is a bit childish about anyone else using the studio which he had planned so carefully for my work.

"I think we'll risk it," I said, and she went to the telephone and summoned our husbands.

They were at the door of the studio almost immediately.

"What's up?" they asked simultaneously.

"Come in and sit ye down," Lillian said, drawing chairs for them, "and we'll tell you."

CHAPTER 38
Two Sides of a Trick

"YOU'VE asked a question," said Freddy cheerfully, "and now perhaps you'll answer it. Would you care for a discussion, or wouldn't you?"

"I wouldn't," Sam told him.

"Very well." He leaned back in his chair. "In that case I shall be forced to deliver a monologue in my best manner. I'll be grateful if you'll listen."

Sam said evenly: "Unless I'm mistaken you came here to persuade me that I should marry Peak."

"That's about it."

"Then I don't want to listen."

"I think you do." He was suddenly serious. "You know me, Sam, and you know I wouldn't travel a million miles without a darn good reason. I came here because I know something that you don't. It's something you ought to know."

She was completely unmoved. "That may be true, Freddy, but it just happens that I don't want to hear about it."

He stared. "Is that fair? I've come a long way, you know."

Sam said nothing for a time. At last she said listlessly: "I've got to make you see, somehow, the way I feel. Perhaps the best way to do that is to tell you what I've been going through for the last few months. I'll review those months briefly for you. They began just before Christmas, when I had practically decided to marry Peak for his money, and had told him so. That worried me. I couldn't sleep nights wondering if I was doing the right thing. Then you came along and I fell in love with you—or thought I did. That nearly drove me crazy. I didn't know whether to send you away or to forget my responsibilities and marry you. Then Nelson eloped. I threw you over and got myself engaged to Peak. I thought I had to do it. Then I fell in love with Peak, really in love. Then—but what's the use?" She spread her hands expressively. "You know the whole story. It ended only a couple of weeks ago, and the ending was the crowning touch."

"I know," Freddy nodded in sympathy. "You've had a fairly tough time."

"I have, and I know what caused it. All this love business caused it, and nothing else."

"Well?"

"Well," said Sam quietly. "I've had enough. I'm fed up. Like a child that has eaten six plates of chocolate ice cream, I don't want any more. The very word makes me want to jump in the ocean. I'm through with it for good. Do you understand?"

"I suppose so." He seemed doubtful. "I suppose I do."

"I'm glad, for I don't want you to think I'm rude. It's just that I can't stand any more. Since I've been here I haven't allowed myself to think, and I haven't opened any letters or telegrams. Now I'm asking you not to say whatever is in your mind."

"But, Sam!" He scratched his head. "It's important. It's darn important!"

"It couldn't be important. If you told me that the world was coming to an end I wouldn't be interested. I'm cured, Freddy."

"Oh, well." He sighed. "If you feel that way, of course."

"That's the way I feel." Sam glanced at her watch and got to her feet. "You'll stay for supper, won't you?"

"Thanks." Freddy also rose. "I'd like to."

"Have you ever opened littlenecks?"

"No, but I won't have any trouble. I'm clever with my hands."

Sam laughed. "I'll open the littlenecks. You can use your clever hands at peeling potatoes. You might have a chance of success at that."

Freddy, peeling potatoes, watched Sam in considerable puzzlement. Was it possible that she was so completely indifferent as she seemed? Was he to be forced to go away without a word?

They talked little until their meal was prepared and half eaten. Then Sam said: "How is Fourth? You've seen him, I suppose."

Freddy nodded. "Yes, I've seen him. I've seen Nelson and Martha, too. Nelson and Martha are living at the stable again."

"I supposed they would be. How are they getting on? Has Nelson still got his job?"

"Yes."

"And Fourth?"

"Well, Fourth isn't working just now, but he seems to think that he'll soon be selling books again. From what I gather, the prospect gives him no paroxysms of pleasure."

"How is he? Is he worried?"

Freddy smiled. "I wouldn't say that. Your step-father, Sam, is not a man to be beaten on the whole of misfortune. He interests, He's rebounding at the moment to the tune of a widow lady. Mass, type: weight, one-eighty on the hoof."

"Really!" She stirred. "I must have known. I suppose he'll be marrying her soon if Fourth does."

"I couldn't say about that, but the indications couldn't point more unmistakably to the altar. There was something in the air. [illegible] I suppose I [illegible]

"I suppose I [illegible]

"Then," Freddy interrupted, "you found out about the invention deal?"

"Yes."

"That upset the apple cart completely. You felt that you'd been tricked, not to say deceived," he went on.

"Well? Can you blame me?"

"No. The deception was there, but that isn't the point. The point is, why was the deception made?"

She laughed without mirth. "Must you ask?"

"I don't need to ask what you think. You think that in giving Fourth money, Peak was really trying to buy you."

"I don't think. I know." There was a bitterness in her tone. "Clever trick, wasn't it? It almost worked."

"I thought you felt that way." Freddy nodded. "It's really an amusing world when you come to think of it."

She turned away. "I'm glad you find it so."

Freddy said quietly: "You're wrong, you know, Sam. You're utterly wrong."

"Wrong?" Her head was aching again. "What do you mean?"

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TOMORROW will be Saturday and we can go anywhere and do anything we want to do, if my mother or my ant don't holler for me to come back and mind Annabelle Lee. My mother hardly ever does that, because mothers know that boys don't have much time to play, so they would rather do the work themselves than to make their little boys miss a chance to have a good time. That is the way mothers are and ants aren't. Ants don't think a boy ought to have any time to play at all, so they would keep him busy all the time if they could, and wash him every time they looked at him.

When I had let Jubilee down by his rope this morning and done my work and everything and had opened up my face and dropped my breakfast into me like dropping things into a paper bag, I wiped my mouth on my sleeve and got up and there was Younise and Feeble and Maggie just coming in, and Feeble asted me if I was supprized when the Last Bag of Tripe caught the bag full of water yesterday, and I told her I wasn't as supprized as I would of been if he hadn't jumped in the way and kept me from catching it. So then my folks had to ast questions and find out all about it, and they thought it was offal funny. What girls do is all right.

I got to thinking about my tin can squawker in school, and when school was out I smuck away from the bunch and went home and got a can and made a hole in the bottom of it, and then I got a long string and went up to the attic and let it down between the plaster to the cellar and put it through the hole in the can and tied a knot on it and then I went back to the attic and pulled the string up and rubbed a lot of rosum on it and tied it so the can would be up tight against the cellar ceiling, and then I went out in the yard and was playing on the cellar pole and Feeble came with the twins in their buggy and My mother came out and then my ant came out and they talked baby talk to the twins and they didn't even talk up.

My mother said if I would put clams on the ship and be real nice for the world to see how good my mother and ant brought me up I could have the rest of the day off, so I said I didn't want to. Then Younise said I would make a good sailor and I said I didn't want to be a sailor, I was going to be a pirate, and Younise said pirates were bad men and I said I didn't care, I was going to be a bad man, and Younise said I was a mean boy and I said I didn't care, I was going to be a mean boy, and Younise said I was a bad boy and I said I didn't care, I was going to be a bad boy, and Younise said I was a mean bad boy and I said I didn't care, I was going to be a mean bad boy, and Younise said I was a bad mean boy and I said I didn't care, I was going to be a bad mean an Elected County President at Annual Meeting ey M. E. Church; Three Speakers Address embers; Reaffirm Stand on Dry Law.

he young people of will not permit the Eighteenth amend- hrough the W. C. T. ing educated to the was the keynote of ing session of the nual Marion Coun- convention at Wes- ch.

nnings of west Cen- elected president of up for the fifteenth r officers elected at session all are from Marion. Mrs. Jennings has served her 14 terms as president over a period of years, not running consecutively.

Three Speakers

Mrs. Mamie Ensign of Defiance, state W. C. T. U. scientific temperance instructor and lecturer, Mrs. Fannie Drummond of Oberlin, state Young People's Branch director, and Ralph Carhart, a Marion attorney, were the speakers last night.

Boys and girls from the Marion county children's home Y. P. B. were guests last night and preceding the program, heard Mrs. Ensign give an illustrated lecture on scientific facts concerning narcotics and liquor.

"There are young boys and men who like to be smart and show off. They take a drink and doing so, take in their hands the lives of the girl they are with and dozens of people driving on the road," Mr. Carhart said in opening his talk. "Is It Necessary to Carry a Hip Pocket Flask to Secure a Date." He declared that it is an insult to a girl, for the man she is with to have liquor with him and to drink it.

In speaking of a recent statement made that 80 percent of the young people of high school and colleges drink, Mr. Carhart said: "Do you believe that 5,000 young people at Ohio State university would be so ungrateful as to use the hard-earned money their parents provide them for their schooling to buy this high-priced poison?"

Mrs. Ensign in a short speech preceding Mr. Carhart's talk, urged the parents to support the young people in their work of educating themselves against liquor, and urged their support to the W. C. T. U., and to the teachers in the schools.

Talks to Young People

Mrs. Drummond in her talk, "The Future Votes of America," kept her theme within the realms of understanding of the young people present. "If the W. C. T. U. is doing nothing but teaching the young people the effect of alcohol it is more than paying them for their work," she said.

She pointed out the ways in which alcohol slows up the mind and body, and used Charles A. Lindbergh and Commander Byrd as examples of men who have gained the heights of fame and never drank. She quoted a newspaper interview with Thomas A. Edison, in which he heartily approved of prohibition. In closing, she issued this challenge to the young people: "Live your best."

Mrs. Jennings in a few words stated that if the Eighteenth amendment is to be retained, the boys and girls must be given the facts regarding liquor.

Annabel Ballentine, president of the Children's home B. Y. P. U. conducted devotions opening the service. A trio from the home, Martha James, Nadine Ballentine and Alma Minshall sang, and Oma Spencer from the home gave a reading. Thomas Gay, also from the home, gave a chalk talk showing the evils of beer, wine and whisky. A reading, "Backward, Turn Backward," was given by Bernard Brooks, followed by a piano solo played by Robert Haldeman, president of the Marion Y. P. B.

Preceding the benediction by Rev. G. G. Canfield of First Church of the Brethren, Rev. Carl V. Roop of First United Brethren church gave a short explanatory talk on the "High School Quiz Book Club," which is to be organized in Marion and the county for the purpose of putting in the hands of every junior and senior in high school, a book to aid in teaching the physiological effects of alcohol as well as some fundamental facts concerning the Constitution of the United States. Mrs. Zoa Davis presided last night.

Rev. Mr. Roop, Dr. C. E. Turley of Epworth M. E. church, Mrs. Jennings and Rev. W. F. LaRue of LaRue, are on the club committee.

Officers Elected

Officers elected with Mrs. Jennings follow: Mrs. Zoa Davis and Mrs. George Orians, vice presidents; Mrs. E. J. Hollandshead, corresponding secretary; Miss Minnie Hoover, recording secretary; Mrs. Hazel Ingle, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Bertha Barkley, treasurer. Department directors will be named at a called executive meeting in the near future.

Every unnion and all of the 28 departments of the county were represented at yesterday's meeting. Twenty-five thousand pieces of W. C. T. U. literature have been distributed in Marion and the county in the last year, reports showed.

Each union showed a gain in membership for the year. The Minnie Johnson union of colored women showed the largest percent gain. Mrs. Fred Cranmer is president of the union. T. J. LaRue union showed the largest gain in actual number of members. Mrs. Emma Gaston is president.

Mrs. Ensign, who has been lecturing in the county schools this week, spoke this morning at Harding High school. She spoke this week in the Grand Prairie, Meeral, Meeker, Martel, Kirkpatrick, Caledonia and Green Camp schools and next week will speak each day at other schools in the city and county.

The resolution on education adopted yesterday follows:

"Resolved: That we continue all our lines of educational work, putting a new emphasis on the teaching of youth. We recommend that we intensify this teaching through scientific temperance instruction in the public schools, the placing of temperance books and periodicals in school libraries, the observance of Education week Nov. 11 and of Temperance day on Jan. 16.

"We pledge a continued campaign against the use of tobacco and cigarets and we appeal to the womanhood of Marion county to refrain from acquiring the tobacco habit through the smoking of cigarets in the interest of their own health and that of their children."

The resolution on prohibition reads as follows:

"Resolved: That we will maintain that prohibition is the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic. We believe that prohibition at its worst is better than the license system at its best.

"Therefore, be it resolved that we pledge ourselves to vote at all elections and to support only those candidates who openly pledge allegiance to the support of the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law and we pledge our support to the enforcement of said law. We declare for dry planks in the platform of political parties."

BOYS TAKE LEAD IN CONVERSATION

By International News Service

NEW YORK.—Women may be the undisputed champion talkers, but it has been definitely established that just the opposite is true among young children.

A survey of 3-year-old children showed that boys hold the record for lengthy and good conversation. In a test given by Dr. Janet Fowler Nelson boys showed greater activity and initiative and more interest in their surroundings.

The experiment also revealed that children slowest to respond to tests were the least intelligent.

A machine with a pulling and pressing capacity of 3,000,000 pounds will be installed at Columbia university for testing materials.

INDEPENDENT GROCERS' ALLIANCE

To take that gray look out of your wash

BY MARY LEE WORK

An Easier Way To Wash Clothes —And Do Various Other Hard Jobs in Half the Time

Here's a new method of washing clothes that takes the drudgery out of washing. Everywhere I go, women are using it because it makes living so much easier—so much more worth while. With it, you do any kind of washing—from the stoutest linens to delicately-colored children's clothes; costly lingerie—in half the time it takes you to do it now—or less.

And—you banish and avoid entirely streaks, spots, that ugly gray look women complain of. And fade of any kind. In careful laboratory tests a man's blue shirt for instance, was washed 75 times without appreciable fade. This is probably twice the washing the average shirt gets before it is worn out.

How To Do It

You get a package of a preparation called Climalene at any grocery store for a dime. Put 2 tablespoonfuls in a washtub of water. Use the same kind of soap you ordinarily do. But use only ¼ the amount you now use. That is all. Then see for yourself the amazing results.

Climalene acts by making water—whether it is hard or medium hard—soft as rain water.

For that reason you use only ¼ the amount of soap you now use. And the end "soap-eat" and fade of fine things.

Then, due to mildly cleansing properties of its own, it dissolves grime and dirt instantly, thus cutting washing time in half—either in the dishpan or washtub.

Shop With The Time Saved

Consider what you can do with the time you save. Thousands of women shop, go to the movies, enjoy life with the time they save this way. Do the things you now think only a woman with servants can do.

And have hands caressingly smooth and lovely. For Climalene acts as a beautifying agent to the hands.

Marvelous For Dishes, Too

Use Climalene too, to wash dishes in half the time and have them shine and sparkle marvelously—just as they do in shop windows.

Use too, to clean silver, to remove "bathtub ring", to make scrubbing, cleaning of all sorts, far simpler and quicker. Full directions come with every package. Try it. Find out what it can do for you.

Boy Scout Executive Suggests 10-year Program for Development of Camp

A report of the activity, operation, results and a summary of the season at Camp John A. Owens the scout camp of the Harding area has been submitted to the scout council by Arthur S. Brooks scout executive and camp director

Summarizing his report, Brooks advocated several plans for future improvement and development of the camp. Among the ideas suggested was the adoption of a comprehensive 10-year plan with a committee to be appointed this fall composed of men who are experts in the fields of sanitation construction health, education, forestry, camping, scouting etc. The work of this committee would be to visit outstanding camps in the state, make careful estimates of the growth of scouting in this area in the next few years and formulate a plan of development in keeping with the needs of the boys of Marion and the Harding area. Additional plans for developments would be adopted from year to year in accordance with a carefully prepared plan Brooks added

Offers New Plan

The opening of the report cited the early adoption this year of the troop-centered" camp idea, with the council providing the site and building purchasing supplies food and equipment preparing and cooking the meals and giving general supervision but leaving the scoutmaster free to carry on his work with his individual boys Brooks cited many advantages of the troop-centered camp among which are that it assists untrained scoutmasters with their work relieves him of many routine details and responsibilities gives direct council supervision of the troops camping in regard to health and safety and provides an opportunity for the troop to camp at the lowest possible cost and without the necessity of expenditure of troop funds for camping equipment

The report showed that out of the 98 scouts in camp this year 40 of them took advantage of the list week for overnight camping A definite schedule was followed in the camp program the report continued with the day starting with reveille at 6 30 a. m and ending with taps at 9 30 p m Stated periods both morning and after noon were set aside for projects in handicraft swimming and lifesaving study nature study and other parts of camp and scout work

Club Approves Menus

The menus were approved by a committee from the local Federation of Women's clubs Daily food costs were kept and the supplies were purchased from 14 local merchants

Each scout and leader was required to present a health history and medical examination certificate signed by the parents and a physician before entering camp Dr Herman A. Rhu served as camp physician and made frequent trips to the camp checking the health of the campers No cases of serious illness and no serious accidents were encountered during the camp period

The rules of the national camping department of the Boy Scouts of America and of the American Red Cross were fully carried out at the camp In the waterfront program the report stated Among the requirements met were the division of the swimming groups into three classes swimmers, beginners and non-swimmers the use of the buddy" system and checkboard and swimming only at regular periods with life guards on duty

Eight scouts passed the junior and Cross life-saving tests and 10 non swimmers learned to swim Twelve campers received their swimmers' badges and 16 their Red Cross beginners badges.

Members of the camp committee are Charles H. Isaly chairman Dr E L Brady Dr Herman A. Rhu Cecil R Leavens Wilbur Symes and Frank D Gloomer

Injuries Hit Harding Team as Game with Ashland Nears

MACK SEEKS MEANS TO CHECK MARTIN IN SIXTH SERIES GAME

Connie Has Heart-to-Heart Talk with Team as Crucial Battle Nears.

By The Associated Press

ST LOUIS Oct 9—Sixty eight year old Connie Mack after a heart to heart talk with each of his regulars ordered them to bed early last night and completed his plans to check a wild youngster of only 27

The old master won his first American pennant before Pepper Martin was born but he freely admits he has never seen anything in all his half century of baseball to match the exploits of the Cardinal outfielder

If necessary the As were prepared to bow to the exigencies of strategy today and walk Martin In five games Pepper has not received a pass although it might have been the very best of tactics to have walked him considerably in the fifth game It isn't safe to walk Martin however unless second base is occupied and even then the menace is increased

Mack was understood to have decided on keeping all his regulars in the lineup at least for the start of today's game despite the benching of Bishop and Haas in Philadelphia The reserves will be on their toes however for an emergency

A HARDING High Booster club! Can such an organization be possible?

Apparently it can. A group of local business men have already taken the initial steps toward the formation of such an organization and will complete the details incidental to its formation next week The general purpose of the club will be officials state to promote a better spirit of cooperation between business men and other citizens and the athletic department of Harding High school

There have been numerous complaints registered with this department concerning the alleged lack of interest in high school athletics on the part of the Marion business element. A part of the complaints were no doubt justified but not all of them. However regardless of whether there has been a spirit of cooperation between the two in the past, the Booster club bids fair to supply the necessary cooperation in the future dies behind the Booster club It should be a distinct boon to athletics at Harding

The Booster club has announced as its first project the securing of a new football playing field for Harding This can come none too soon The present field is in terrible condition The surface is fairly pock marked with depressions making running both difficult and dangerous The wonder is that there are no more twisted ankles and similar injuries during games played there While there is no other the school must play at this place but as a football field it is at present a better cow pasture

Despite the fact the football season is only getting well started, several local organizations have already began to consider the coming basketball season First in importance among these groups is the Y-Indus club supporters of Marion's premier hardwood aggregation Tentative plans have already been formulated by the club for the coming season and games are being scheduled as rapidly as suitable opponents can be found

The club has taken in several new members recently who will add to the strength of the team and the organization is looking forward to another big year The Ohio state Y M C A club tournament will be held in Marion this season The Y Indus will again compete this season under the auspices of the Marion Steam Shovel company playing under the name of the Shovel Y-Indus club

FOSTORIA TEAM TO PLAY HERE SUNDAY

An all star Marion baseball team will clash with Fostoria Sunday afternoon at 2 30 p m on the Lincoln park diamond The Fostoria aggregation has been beaten but twice this season and has played some of the toughest opponents in the home district

Darnell and Drumm will form the Marion battery Some of the other Marion players will be Glenn Price Johnnie Marshall Hosey Williams Fido Robbins Flash Baldauf and Eddie Sawyer

BY O E 'BABE' HOLLINGBERY

(Head Football Coach, Washington State College)

By The Associated Press

PULLMAN, Wash—Coaching systems vary a great deal on the Pacific coast with most of them employing shifting offenses

The basic play of my system has been the same for the past 22 teams that I have coached The style depends on driving power deception and above all a thorough knowledge of fundamentals and perfection of execution

No shift is used I've always attempted to balance our play from every formation with passing power and deception

Follows No Pattern

My system is not patterned after any of the well known particular styles but is a product of my own playing experiences and deductions from the contacts I've had with football during the last 20 years

The system has been fairly successful against the various innovations that have sprung up because it is based primarily on sound and exacting fundamentals

I've always used an unbalanced line offense with ends in and out and one or two wingbacks at the discretion of the quarterback

The position of my key men in the backfield is somewhat different from any other system I know inasmuch as the principal ball carrier occupies the second position which is fartherst back from center

In this way I have two men who are equally effective and deceptive in passing running and faking

Cites Best Example

In singling any one particular game as the best example of the execution of our system I would select the University of Washington contest played in Pullman two years ago With the score 13-0 against us Archie Buckley our quarterback by perfectly alternating the two key backs completely deceived the opposing defense and using cutbacks and spinner plays managed to pull the game out of the fire 20-13

The winning play was a spinner which drew the defensive center through the line where he was swept out from the side by a halfback the spinner man taking the ball through the hole for a winning touchdown

Of course all such plays are made good through proper use of other plays leading up to it.

I expect the key men of the offense this year to be George Sander right half, Phil Sarboe, left half and Stanley Colburn, fullback

They become key men when they play number one or two positions in the backfield Sander is a junior and the other two sophomores.

They are therefore, new to this competition and it will be a matter of time to determine what their inexperience means to the system a success

3 REGULARS QUIT AS LEAGUE RACE OPENS

Morgan, Jevas, Williams Not Likely To Start; One Other N. C. O. Contest on Sked.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor The Star

With three regulars expected to be among those not present Harding High school's aspiring football team will trek to Ashland Saturday to play the first N C O league engagement of the season with Coach Rosie Siarnis Hilltoppers The only other league fray Saturday will see Mansfield defending champion travelling to Galion for a setto with Fred McClintock's Orangemen Bucyrus has an open date and Shelby takes on a minor non-league opponent in Upper Sandusky

Considerable interest rests on the outcome of the Harding Ashland and Mansfield-Galion games, despite the fact they are the first league struggles of the current season The winners of these two games will automatically assume a position among the foremost challengers for the crown now in possession of Mansfield

Teams Rate Even

None of the four teams figuring in league frays this week will go into battle a very heavy favorite to win Harding and Ashland will start the game on even terms based on previous showings turned in by the two outfits Mansfield will rule a slight favorite over Galion regardless of the steam rollering which Galion handed Crestline last week Mansfield has yet to consistently flash the power of last year Tygertown critics point out yet has displayed streaks of form which serve to mark her as a dangerous rival

Coach D N Bohyer has been drilling Harding in secret this week planning to surprise the Ashlanders with a variety of plays which heretofore have not been used by the Presidents Bohyer has also put his charges through some lengthy drills in pass defense the lack of which caused Harding to drop last week's tilt to Delaware

Three on Bench

Dick Morgan quarterback Bill Jevas guard and Eric Williams center are the regulars who are not likely to start against Ashland Morgan suffered a shoulder injury in the Columbus South game and further aggravated the hurt in the fracas with Delaware He will probably not get into the Ashland game at all His place will probably be taken by Smith

With Morgan gone from the backfield the punting and passing assignment will probably go to Guthrie Guthrie will do just as good a job of tossing aerials as Morgan but his kicks will probably be somewhat shorter Lindsey will direct the Harding attack in the absence of Morgan

Eric Williams and Bill Jevas may get into the game at some time or another but neither is likely to play much Jevas has four stitches in his forehead as a result of the Wednesday scrimmage and Williams was kicked in a kidney this week putting him on the "semi hospital list. Rathell will probably fill in for Jevas with Bob Mautz taking the place of Williams at center

John Pickerel will probably get a chance this week to see some service at one of the flanks Pickerel has been showing up better in practice drills this week and may displace one of the regular ends Hagan and McDaniels

Ashland Looms Tough

Ashland will present Harding with a smooth working and fast moving offense one that will tax the Presidents defense the limit. Despite this fact Harding should be able by playing the brand of ball played earlier in the season to check the running attack of the Hilltoppers However a letdown such as experienced against Delaware and the Red and Black colors will be humiliated twice in succession Ashland has an eye on the coveted title held by Mansfield and will battle hard to start the league season with a victory The Hilltoppers defeated Harding last year 7 0 winning on a blocked punt late in the final period

The game is called for 2 30 p m in Ashland

SAINTS GAINING ON ROCHESTER WINGS

By The Associated Press

ROCHESTER N Y, Oct 9 — The team that came back—the St Paul Saints still were in a tough spot today but their chances of winning or at least prolonging the little world's series were considerably better as they went into the eighth game against the Rochester Red Wings International league champions

The American Association titleholders facing elimination for two days were only one game behind the Red Birds after yesterday's 9-5 victory Two triumphs had cut Rochester's margin from four games to one to 4-3

ARREST MAN ON SPEEDING CHARGE

Another victim of the campaign against reckless drivers and speeders was gathered in last night when Millard Casard 23 of Agosta was arrested when according to the police he was caught speeding on north Main street. He was released on his own recognizances for his appearance in court at 9 a m Monday The campaign has resulted in the arrest of nearly a dozen speeders and in each case where a plea of guilty is entered the experience has cost them $16 20

Giants to Agosta.

The Merchant Giants a colored team of Marion will play Agosta Sunday afternoon on the Agosta diamond Ed Johnson of Prospect will take a team to Agosta on the same day for the second half of a twin bill playing the winners of the first setto in a nightcap game Adams will probably pitch for the Giants while the starting hurlers for the other teams have not been named

ANOTHER BATTLE IN PROSPECT AS DOMAR TACKLES ROBIN REED

Wrestling Match at Shovel Monday Promises To Be Plenty Fast.

Next Monday night's wrestling match at Shovel gym may be one of these oft advertised but seldom seen dog eat dog' affairs when Jack Domar, the rough house Toledoan tangles with Robin Reed the great writer from the sunny slopes of the Pacific coast in a two-best-out-of three-falls contest.

Domar is the type that tries to annihilate every opponent he faces He's the "killer" type that is not content with merely defeating an opponent but has an all-consuming desire to disable him if he can

He's the bad boy of the 145 pounders and there's not the slightest doubt about that. His record is dotted with instances where he not only defeated but severely injured opponents with his slam holds and rather questionable tactics

He's a rugged rough mixer and is to the 145 pounders what John Kilonis is to the light heavyweights the terror" of the division

However he'll be meeting a man in Reed who can give as well as take and who so far has held his own against the best in the 145-pound division

Reed who looks like a small boy when he climbs into the ring is no man's easy mark. The coast star can wrestle like nobody's business and is perfectly able to take care of himself however tough the going

"Rockne Spirit" Carries On as Irish Tackle Wildcats

CHICAGO Oct 9—The 'Spirit of Notre Dame crushed only a few months ago by the tragic death of Knute Rockne flamed again today as Coach Heartley Anderson polished up his big football machine for a test against the Wildcats of Northwestern

Even the old master himself failed to arouse a more infectious enthusiasm as that which swept over the Notre Dame campus the football practice field and South Bend today The players drilled eagerly Placards with old fashioned fighting slogans decorated the campus

At Northwestern the same picture of football enthusiasm was painted by the students and players who forgot all about the blow of Reb Russell's injuries and hustled through a spirited drill last night. Ollie Olson successor to Russell at fullback added to the enthusiasm by proving himself one of the best ground gaining and kicking prospects to wear the purple

Both Optimistic

Reports from both camps were optimistic but both teams worried about their defenses

As Saturday's battles drew near the host of injuries haunted the games of Chicago and Illinois who takes up the under dog roles in the first all Big Ten games of the season. Ineligibility robbed Chicago of two of its sorely needed backs Pat Page, Jr and Lou Kanne while Vinson Sahlin a fine open field runner was ordered out of the game against Michigan because of a strained back muscle Michigan lost the services of two regulars in Harry Newman and Stan Hozer At Illinois big Dave Cook limped so badly that he appeared definitely out of the hard battle against Purdue along with Bill Charle, who had a broken collar bone Coach Bob Zuppke planned to let Gil Berry do the leading and kicking against the Boilermakers.

Kiwanis Club Speaker Tells of Early Race

Tales of a race of people, extinct hundreds of years before the discovery of America by the white man, but with knowledge which enabled them to create the cypher as used in our numerals a thousand years before its use by the Greeks and who created a calendar said to be far more efficient than that now in use were told by Dr W Stuart Carnes of Canton in an address at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Marion club yesterday noon

Hidden away in the jungles of Yucatan Mexico the remnant of this civilization now known as the Lost City was accidentally discovered by Colonel Charles Lindbergh in a flight across that country several years ago Dr Carnes said

Unable To Land

Unable to land because of the jungles Lindbergh reported his discovery upon his return to the United States and since that time the Lost City has been the mecca of many explorers including Dr Carnes who illustrated his talk with moving pictures taken upon the occasion of his visit there last year

In spite of a civilization which enabled the Maya Indians who compiled this lost race to create works of art to carve their hieroglphics in the stone with chisels of bronze and to develop such an intricate thing as a calendar cruelty and superstition reigned the speaker declared

The sacred well 150 feet in diameter and 130 feet deep was the scene of many human sacrifices according to Yucatan legend Hundreds of girls from 14 to 20 years predestined at birth to become human sacrifices to their Maya God were cast into this well along with articles intended to appease the gods The recovery of more than 90 skulls of young girls of pure gold bowls and costly jewels from the bottom of this well by explorers bears out the legend Dr Carnes said

Cruel Rites

Another ghastly ceremonie the speaker said was described by the present Maya descendants Priests they told Dr Carnes used to cut the hearts from living sacrifice victims in order to feel them beat in their hands and thus inculcate in themselves eternal life

Although this Lost City is thought to have had a population of nearly a million excavations thus far Dr Carnes said, have failed to reveal any skeletons or traces of burial although a huge stone structure on all four sides of which appear the chiseled forms of human faces is believed to be a tomb of the dead

Dr Carnes in addition to being president of the Car Van Steel Products Co of Canton is a traveler observer and lecturer and has also acquired some fame as a metallurgist and archaeologist

STUDENTS SUGGEST NAMES FOR BUILDING

Oakland Junior Pupils Write Themes on Reason for Choice

An interesting project of the English classes at the new junior high school in Oakland Heights has been the suggesting of a fitting name for the school Each student wrote a theme telling why the name was selected as appropriate

The themes were a part of the regular English class work and the subject was selected because it was timely

The official name of the school unit also of the new Indian avenue building will be selected by the board of education before the dedication services Monday Oct 26 at the Oakland building

Ninety three names were forthcoming when all themes have been checked and many of the themes gave excellent reasons why the names were selected

Among the names suggested were West View Eber Baker George Washington Roosevelt Lincoln Jefferson Hillview Marion Heights Franklin Belle Font and Edgewood

Some of the names brought forth exclamations of wonder and doubt as the long list was read

Will Rogers Signal Hill Chatfield South and West Advanced Good View Cultural Hercules Evanston Starling Loving View Point Sunview Wesleyne Field View Ehte Excel Yale Ironsides Meeker America the Beautiful Carnegie Superior Elementary Excelsior Columbia Lincoln Medium and Shady View are among other names suggested

The project required originality on the part of the students and their papers were interesting to those privileged to read them

GRAIN PRICES SLIP LOWER

British Tariff Agitation Has Bearish Influence on Chicago Pit.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Oct. 9—Influenced by stock market setbacks grain prices averaged lower early today. Agitation for tariff enactments in Great Britain continued as a bearish factor. Opening ⅛ cent off to ¾ up, wheat later underwent a general sag. Corn started ⅛@¼ lower and continued to point downward.

Wheat price rallies after the early downturns were associated with recoveries in securities and with buying based on assertions by a Chicago grain trade authority that never before in the month of October had the world's wheat situation harbored so many substantial possibilities of supply decreases. He cited large reduction of wheat acreage in the southern hemisphere, damaging drouth in the American and Canadian Northwest still unbroken, and likelihood of liberal curtailment of domestic winter wheat seeding southwest with a poor start by fully 9,000,000 acres. An additional bullish circumstance emphasized was enlarged per capita use of wheat going on at the expense of costlier foods owing to industrial difficulties.

Some of the wheat buying was ascribed to a leading speculator, who was credited with taking more than a million bushels. Corn and oats swayed with wheat. A strengthening influence helping the corn market upward from early declines was word that excellent demand for corn to be shipped to the Pacific coast had become manifest.

Provisions reflected a persistent unusual percentage of light weights in hog arrivals.

ARE YOU CONSTIPATED?

Did you know that you could get a Laxative Tablet that contains BILE SALTS? Also did you know that they were made by the makers of the well known TON-GEE Medicine?

Dreadful constipation! Some of the most chronic cases of constipation are now being relieved daily by TON-GEE Laxative Tablets—which contains Bile Salts. They stir the bile to normal, something that every constipation sufferer needs.

Nature provides bile in your system for this very purpose. And it is the Bile Salts in these tablets that make them vastly more effective than previously known laxatives. TON-GEE Laxatives act by natural means. They cleanse your bowels—gradually not drastic or severe. They will clear away the hidden poisons that have stayed in your body longer than they should have stayed.

What is more—TON-GEE Laxatives are not habit-forming because after taking a few of these tablets, you can follow the simple rules of health so that your bowels will function normally again.

Try some of these TON-GEE LAXATIVE TABLETS—which contain BILE SALTS, today. These Laxatives and TON-GEE Medicine are sold in Marion at STUMP & BAIRD DRUG STORE.

TAX GROUPS WILL MEET WITH BOARD

Organization Will Study City School Budgets at Meeting of Board Monday.

Tax committees representing the chamber of commerce, the Farm bureau, grange and the Marion County Taxpayers' association will meet with members of the city board of education Monday night to study the budget of the board for the calendar year 1932, it was announced today in the office of the chamber.

In line with their activities in studying the county budget, the committees probably will suggest possible reductions to enable the schools to meet an anticipated shortage of revenue in 1932.

The schools have already retrenched for their 1931-32 term, reducing salaries for that period 10 per cent.

Steps have been taken by the tax reduction committees to form a permanent organization, countywide in scope. They hope to make this organization a part of a statewide organization now being organized by Warren F. Perry, secretary of the Ohio Manufacturers' association.

Arrangements are being made for a countywide tax meeting in Marion sometime this month, probably during the week of Oct. 26, at which C. A. Dyer of Columbus, legislative agent for the grange and Farm bureau, will speak on taxation.

The existing committees plan to continue their study of the county budget, with a view to recommendations for reductions when the county budget commission meets to determine tax rates.

MOUSER TO ADDRESS POSTAL EMPLOYES

Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr. will address the annual meeting of Ohio postal and federated employes at Columbus Nov. 7, he announced today. The meeting will be attended by the letter carriers' organization, post office employes, railway mail clerks and federated employes.

The congressman also will speak Oct. 24 at Napoleon, O., when the postal employes of northwestern Ohio meet there for a banquet.

...RY TALKS ...LUB MEET

Criticism of Welfare ...o Poor Relief Fund Expenditure.

...that $43,000 received by ...y for poor relief pur... ...the sale of bonds under ...le-Roberts bill, had been ...rtated made by H. E. ...resident of the Family ...ociety at the luncheon ...f the Kiwanis club last ...e emphatically denied by ...eary, clerk of the board ...commissioners, at the luncheon meeting yesterday.

Mr. O'Leary, who, with members of the county board, were guests of the club, declared the action taken by the board of commissioners was entirely approved by the attorney general's office, the state tax commission and the state welfare department, and no action was taken until after the resolution had been approved by all three of these state departments.

Balance $43,000

In explaining the action of the board, Mr. O'Leary said immediately after the passage of the Pringle-Roberts bill the county had filed a petition seeking permission to sell $43,000 worth of bonds for poor relief purposes.

Upon the receipt of this money, he said, all of the money previously appropriated for the county home, children's home, blind relief, care of tuberculosis cases, mother's pensions and clothing for inmates of state institutions and which remained unspent, was returned to the general fund. These institutions were then reimbursed with money received from the sale of the bonds.

The $43,000 was not sufficient to meet the appropriations for the various funds, Mr. O'Leary said, and in addition, more than $27,000 was appropriated from the general fund to make up the deficiencies, which he said, were due to the increased demands for the various relief purposes as a result of the present financial conditions.

Cases Increase

As an example of the increased needs, the clerk pointed to the increase in the number of tuberculosis cases the county has been called on to care for. In addition to the $5,000 originally appropriated for this purpose and which has been spent, the county board appropriated $1,268.59 which has also been expended and the fund is now carrying overdrafts amounting to $624.50 with three months to go before the first of the year. Each case costs the county from $21 to $24.50 a week for maintenance at the various tuberculosis sanitariums in the state.

The number of blind pensioners has also increased, the clerk said, from 65 last year to 82 this year, due principally to the inability of relatives to care for the blind members of their families.

Two of the most important football games on Saturday's schedule will be broadcast play by play over the NBC network. Graham McNamee and Bill Munday, noted announcers, will give the descriptions.

McNamee will announce the Notre Dame-Northwestern game at Soldier's Field in Chicago over the NBC-WEAF chain. His broadcast will start at 2:45 p. m. with the game commencing at 3 p. m. Midwest stations carrying McNamee's description will be WLS, WSAI, WOW, WHAS and WSM. Munday will be heard broadcasting the Princeton-Brown game over an NBC-WJZ network, beginning at 2:15 p. m.

IN DICE GAME

Five persons—one of them this daring woman flier—will shake dice in Honolulu for the privilege of piloting an airplane all alone over 2,100 miles of Pacific ocean to San Francisco. The little group of aerial adventurers, all men except Victorine Lederer (above), is headed by J. R. Von Althaus, wartime member of Baron Von Richtofen's famous "air circus." Miss Lederer is 25 and hails from New York.

Time's Flight.

October, a year ago—

The British imperial conference was in progress at London. Mayor Walker threatened Tammany hall jobholders to choose between their jobs and withholding evidence on the witness stand. Cuba was cleaning rifles for an election.

Newspapers were filled with descriptions of the wreck of the R-101, British airship which crashed in France. Assurance was given freely that the United States airship, Akron, then an incomplete and uncovered skeleton, would come to no such fate.

President Hoover gave speeches before the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor at their conventions in Boston, and at the 103th anniversary of the battle of King's Mountain, South Carolina.

The United States battle fleet was being reduced to the limitations established by the London naval arms treaty. Ratifications of the treaty were formally deposited in London by Japan and the United States.

Captain J. Errol Boyd and Lieutenant Harry P Connor crossed the Atlantic in the ancient monoplane, Columbia, formerly used for the same flight by Clarence D. Chamberlin.

Jack "Legs" Diamond, a hoodlum with a reputation for cowardice, was shot full of holes at a hotel in New York City. His reputation as an important gangland figure resulted from the publicity the episode received.

The kettle was on the fire in Spain. Students of the University of Barcelona tore down the picture of King Alfonso, mutilated it and ended up by general trampling and burning. King Alfonso abdicated last spring. Amos W. W. Woodcock suddenly canceled a newspaper poll on prohibition, telling Washington correspondents he had been convinced that the purpose of the survey, "however innocent," had been misunderstood. Another "snowfall," in a literal sense, marooned hundreds of motorists near Buffalo, New York.

The United States laid an embargo on arms for Brazilian revolutionists, but the revolutionists won anyway, and were quickly recognized by this government.

The sensational charges by Ralph S Kelly respecting the administration of oil shale lands by the interior department were blanked by the department of justice. The New York World, later discontinued, remarked editorially that "it seems to us that these charges call for a more thorough investigation than they have yet received, by an agency whose motives are perhaps less partisan. Such an agency is the public lands commission of the senate." The World had given Kelly, formerly an interior department official, his opportunity to make the charges.

Time's flight brings many new horizons and quickly wipes out the memories of the old ones.

Gilbert K Chesterton is sometimes given to high-class joshing, but he uttered a solemn truth when he said that too many authors are indulging in a "free-for-all race for bigger and better immorality."

A Radio Riot.

Equipping prison cells with radio probably would do more to make existence in a cell bearable than any other single advantage that might be conceded penal groups. An audible world would be spread out in the prisoner's imagination as he listened. It is a theme for prison reformers to enlarge upon, but it has a disheartening joker in it, like most plans to make prison life easier.

The neighborhood around the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kansas, was disturbed early Thursday morning by what sounded like a riot inside the prison walls. Alarms were clanging, angry voices were shouting, and another prison disturbance seemed to be in the making. Warden H B White quieted the fearful apprehension of outsiders, however, by a statement that the prisoners were angry over curtailment of radio privileges. Leavenworth, which is equipped with radio, was having a radio riot.

Censorship rules do not permit the complete account of what occurred to become known, but Warden White admitted that the disturbance was caused by the elimination of nightly radio programs. The prisoners, having once been given certain privileges, were reluctant to give them up, which, in itself, is an important reflection on one difficulty of penal reform.

Most prisoners are serving time because they took unfair advantage of society. They were unable to draw the line between what were their legal rights and what were not their legal rights. It does not require detailed knowledge of penal problems to understand that criminals have the same attitude when they are sent to prison. Once allowed the privilege of listening to radio programs, for instance, they take advantage of the generosity which gave them the privilege to make an outburst when it is curtailed. That is why experienced penal experts hesitate to coddle prisoners. Coddling may cause more trouble than good.

Sweet Charity.

The military and naval academy football teams, backed by cheering cadets and midshipmen, are anxious to be at each other again. Officially, they have been separated since 1927 when they had a difference over eligibility rules, but actually their ancient rivalry is as keen as ever. It takes more than a rule to prevent a cadet wanting to get the better of a midshipman, and vice versa.

Last year, after the country was beginning to fear that the adamantine barrier between the two academies never would be moved away, charity finally turned the trick. A post-season game was arranged for the benefit of the unemployed and played under extreme difficulties of bad weather and unsatisfactory management. The Army gained the satisfaction of winning the game, the Navy gained the satisfaction of holding a stronger Army team to six points.

This year there probably will be the same difficulties of weather to overcome, but better management is promised. There will be no vacant seats whose potential occupants were kept away by exorbitant ticket prices, for instance. The meeting of the teams, furthermore, will be given much of the old time Army-Navy game color as possible, which should make it more attractive to spectators.

Perhaps it is not too soon to suggest that, if the Army and the Navy are going to continue to meet each year under the softening influence of sweet charity, the game be played in mid-season when it will have more the aspect of a football game and less the aspect of a winter carnival.

The Familiar Cycle.

The United States has too many problems of its own to give the British election campaign more than occasional glances. The line-up of issues and candidates is so contradictory, as a matter of fact, that it is almost impossible for observers thousands of miles away to understand what is happening.

Politics, like economics, follows a familiar cycle. Governments are created out of the chaos that attends their downfall. There is the long uphill pull to the climax, or as it sometimes turns out, the crisis. Then follow anxious days of struggle to preserve established patterns, until finally the opposition is too strong and reorganization is demanded.

Prime Minister MacDonald, who pulled the Labor party from comparative obscurity to power, left the party to head a struggling coalition government. There have been anxious weeks of struggling, and now reorganization is in order. It need not spell disaster any more than did reorganization of the monetary system a few weeks ago, but it means definitely that British politics, like British economics, has passed out of human control. No one can foresee yet what the result will be—what the governmental pattern will be before Great Britain's leaders gain control again.

Snow.

It's strange how easy it is to forget that snow is common during five months of the year and falls frequently in two other months. Cold weather, frost-nipped fingers, frozen automobile radiators, icy sidewalks, and roaring fires seem a long time away with summer heat still lingering in sunny corners.

Snow fell in New England a few weeks ago, where until Labor day campers had been enjoying themselves. New England, of course, never quite forgets winter. If there were nothing else, the vast woodpiles would be sharp reminders of the deep snows and howling winds that are so common.

Now, snow has fallen in Wyoming and South Dakota. It is October 9. Winter is still at a safe distance, but summer passed weeks ago. The crimson flags of the sumac give warning that Jack Frost is abroad and in a sharp temper. Dead leaves are beginning to carpet the gutters. Nature is making ready for winter.

Editorial Opinion.

THE MORTGAGED PARTY.

While Democrats are rejoicing over the best national election prospects they have had since the war, and laughing at Hoover's hairshirts, they are forgetting that they are a mortgaged party.

The Democratic national committee owes its chairman, John J. Raskob, $353,250. He is also reported to be on notes for much of the remainder of its $748,190 debt.

It is not necessary to suppose—as some Republican opponents would charge in the heat of campaign battle—that Raskob will use his financial control of the party for unworthy purposes. We doubt very much whether Raskob would or could "own" a Democratic president in the sense that charge is usually made.

But even if Raskob were as much a spiritual angel as he is a financial angel, the present relationship is one which no self-respecting party can long tolerate.

The relationship is just as damning to Raskob as to the party. As one example of many, take prohibition. As a sincere wet, Raskob is trying to persuade his party to take that position. But now he can not speak as a party leader or a committee chairman; he speaks—whether he wants to or not—as the party "owner" and the drys merely point to him to obscure the prohibition issue. On any other issue it is the same.

The Democrats can not be a national party if they are content to be a one-man party financially. Some Democratic politicians may forget this, but the Republican campaign strategists will not.—Columbus Citizen.

PLANT TREES.

Alarmed by the $102,035,400 loss occasioned by the 134,285 forest fires in the United States in a single year, a renaissance of reforestation has dawned. The government, states, universities, industrial organizations and individuals have taken off their coats and started digging in trees, and next year the Daughters of the American Revolution plan to tuck up their aristocratic skirts and plant 10,000 saplings as a memorial to our first president. Before the depression, in 1929, there was a total acreage of 191,557 set out in continental United States. Twenty-one states and territories contributed 31,557 planted acres, municipalities 5,900 more, and lumber companies, pulp and paper, water and power, mining, railroads and other industrials added 25,658 acres. New York state which in 1850 produced twenty per cent of our lumber, and which now cuts less than one per cent, is particularly aroused. The college of foregtry at Syracuse is advocating a plan for the scientific reforestation of 9,500,000 waste acres. This constructive and laudable suggestion bids fair to be adopted. A pending constitutional amendment, if passed, will provide millions for tree planting. Already the state maintains five tree nurseries having an annual output of 40,000,000 trees.—Pathfinder.

Ohio's War Governors.

BY J. M. GALBRAITH.

Ohio has had seven war governors, that is, governors who were called upon to direct the processes by which the state was made to play its proper part in defending the nation in conflict with another nation, or with a rebellious section of this nation. Three of these had to do with our Civil war of 1861 to 1865.

The first Ohio war governor was Return Jonathan Meigs, who happened to be in the executive office when the second war with Great Britain, the war of 1812, came on. What Ohio did in that war was highly important to the nation because the backfire of Great Britain was directed against the frontier of the state.

The second war governor of the state was Mordecai Bartley, and the war that with Mexico. The scene of that war was far distant from the soil of Ohio, and the stress of war was not great upon either man power or the resources of the state.

William Dennison was in the executive chair when the Civil war opened. Without military experience and facing a great task, it must be admitted, even by his critics, that he met the emergency firmly and vigorously. It was due largely to his foresight and executive energy that West Virginia was saved for the union at the outset.

He was followed by David Tod and John Brough, and it is significant of the difficulties of the position that all of Ohio's Civil war governors were single termers.

Asa S. Bushnell was the state's sixth war governor. He was in office in 1898 when the war with Spain came on. This was a short war and the state filled its quotas and rendered all forms of service required promptly and well.

The seventh war governor was James M Cox, upon whose shoulders fell the great task of seeing that Ohio furnished her quota of soldiers and of the means for carrying on the World war. All these governors measured up to the high mark of patriotism and executive ability.

One of the Oldest Diseases.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Many persons are overcome with horror at the mere mention of the word "leprosy." It brings to mind many unpleasant thoughts of the suffering of those afflicted with this disease.

Leprosy is one of the oldest diseases known to man. It was prevalent in Egypt for many centuries. History tells of its occurrence as far back as three or four thousand years before Christ.

Throughout the Middle ages, the disease was very common in Europe. At one time it was a real menace. Leper colonies were formed in an effort to isolate these unfortunate people.

For many years the disease was not thoroughly understood. It was not until 1871, when Hansen, of Bergen, discovered the bacteria which caused the disease, that we knew much about it except its dreadful symptoms. We have learned that leprosy is caused by a germ and that fact makes it easier to deal with the disease.

It is commonly believed that actual contact with a leper will be followed by infection. Yet there are many individuals who have been closely associated with lepers and have not contracted the disease. The fact is, the disease is not as highly contagious as it was formerly believed to be.

Hundreds of physicians and nurses, as well as missionary workers, have been associated with lepers in colonies, some of them for many years. They have avoided infection by simple hygiene care.

Although the disease was first confined to Europe, it gradually spread to the New Hemisphere. It is now estimated that there are about 500 victims in the United States. It is believed there are approximately 3,000,000 lepers throughout the world.

It is only within recent years that any definite success has been made by way of treating this disease. Formerly, it was considered hopeless. The afflicted person was deported to a leper colony so that he might not be a source of danger to others. This was done without any hope of cure.

As a result of continuous investigations and experimentations, a fairly satisfactory remedy has been found. A certain preparation of "chaulmoogra oil" has been used and has effected some beneficial results.

This oil is obtained from an Oriental tree. After careful preparation it is injected into the patient and in most cases has brought about a considerable degree of relief. A recent report states that thirty-one persons have been definitely cured and permitted to leave the leper colony.

Individuals suffering from this disease in the United States are usually sent to a federal sanatorium in Louisiana. Here all the comfort and care that can possibly be given are at the disposal of the patients.

There is no patent medicine that can cure leprosy. The chaulmoogra oil which has been used with such great success is not on public sale. It is administered only to those trained individuals who have been working with this medication for many years.

Some persons with the disease are permitted to go about their affairs under direction of the health authorities. Certain types and stages present no danger to others.

Unfortunately leprosy has a disagreeable social significance. Many individuals who have it refrain from seeking medical advice for fear they will be branded as lepers and made social outcasts. Such an attitude is indeed unfortunate. However, apparent success in the treatment of this disease is very gratifying. It gives hope to every afflicted one.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

E.A.F. Q—What do you advise in the case of an elderly man who does nothing but sit in the house and constantly reads health notices, death notices, doctors' books and talks nothing but his own health and imaginary ailments. He takes bottle after bottle of medicine and pills and is continually going to see a doctor. He is in reality in good health and for his age is very active and eats well.

A—This is due to a form of neurasthenia—and is not uncommon in persons who have no definite occupation to keep their minds otherwise occupied. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

R.L. Q—How serious is a cyst? Does it ever develop into cancer?

A—This depends upon the size and location. No. Consult a surgeon and follow his advice and judgment regarding treatment.

The Lie Detector.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the most popular writers of crime fiction, who has made an exhaustive study, testifies regarding two points contrary to current opinion. First, he makes it clear that looks, personal appearance, do not constitute an index of crime. A man may be handsome, a woman pretty or even beautiful, and yet be a hardened criminal. Sweet-faced women, genial and benignant looking men have been heartless and inhuman murderers.

In the second place, a criminal, so far as outward indication go, often does not appear to be a fugitive, in fear for his life. He will act with the utmost composure, and tell not one lie, but innumerable lies, with impassive countenance and lack of all superficial nervousness. And this when he is "known" to be guilty, although certain bits of evidence are still lacking to secure conviction. Innumerable nervy and cold-blooded people, examined for many hours on end, give no sign of weakening, which might generally be taken as evidence of innocence. And yet other evidence is found to prove their guilt. Their coolness and imperturbability are a colossal bluff.

But science has shown that criminals do give signs of their guilt, under examination. They can control their facial muscles, eyes, general expression. But hidden nerves react strongly as the result of fear. A machine has been invented for the purpose of noting these obscure and hidden nerve reactions. It has a formidable name: pneumo-cardio-sphygmograph. As na rated by Milton Mayer and John Howe in "Steps in the Dark," wonderful results have been accomplished with this instrument by August Vollmer, chief of police of Berkeley, California. Like some of the famous detectives of the Paris Surete, Vollmer is a great believer in the use of scientific methods in the detection of crime. He has used the device above-mentioned some 10,000 times. It is a lie-detector. Subsequent developments have never contradicted the evidence given by the lie-detector.

This little instrument records the subject's blood pressure, heart beat and breathing while he is under examination. A tourniquet is wrapped around the subject's arm, another around his chest. The breathing, heart action, and blood pressure move penlike needles on a slowly-revolving cylinder covered with ruled paper.

If any normal person is asked the startling question, "Did you murder this man?" he reacts to the extent of an increase of about five millimeters in pressure. But if the lie-detector should record a rise of, say, forty millimeters, when this question is asked, then it would be virtually certain that the examinee was the murderer.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Town of Bonn.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

The town of Bonn, famous as the home of Beethoven, lies at one of the most beautiful points along the course of the Rhine.

It is more than 1900 years old—this quaint German town—having been settled in 10 B C by the Roman Drusus. It has been the scene of dramatic events in world history and the objective of many military sieges. Today, however, Bonn's chief fame resides in the fact that Beethoven was born there.

In a tiny attic of an unpretentious house, this great master of German music first saw the light of day. The authorities have made this attic a shrine that all who have thrilled to his mighty music may visit. You will find it today just as it was when Beethoven started at the age of four the studies destined to lead him to an outstanding position in the realm of musical composition.

Standing amid those miserable surroundings you understand the travails and poverty-stricken childhood that beset Beethoven and over which he triumphed in addition to overcoming the terrible handicap of deafness.

But there are other attractions to be found in Bonn and its immediate surroundings. This ancient Roman stronghold possesses a bridge which stretches against a background of receding hills, forming as lovely a picture as you will discover in the entire Rhine valley. There are the attractive villas, the wine gardens lining the river, and the University buildings.

And then there is the beautiful cathedral with its impressive towers! This great house of worship is flooded with light, exquisitely colored by its passage through great stained-glass windows. Blue, gold and red is the vaulted transition ceiling. The lines and angles of the cathedral were designed and constructed by the greatest artists of their age.

And it is in this vast church that the memory of the German musician who was to bring everlasting renown to his home town is kept fresh by services.

As far as can be ascertained the cathedral was founded about 310 A. D. by the Empress Helena who was the mother of Constantine the Great.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 9—Thoughts while strolling: I feel like socking impertinent panhandlers who accost you with: "Say fellow!" With whiskers, Ewing Galloway could pass for Abe Lincoln. Harriet Hoctor grows plump. Paroissien Levy, the tennis star. What became of Milda Spong?

John Golden has the prettiest named secretary in town—Jean Dalrymple. The Park Avenue doorman with black ribboned eyeglasses. Broadways seems a little more the real Broadway with Sophie Tucker in town. Kent Cooper, a Columbus, Indiana, boy, who made good in the city.

That pair of French hat checkers at Dave Moore's. And the thick brogue of the Hibernian starter. I'm always seeing Pomeranians that suggest Fritzi Scheff and Sealyhams suggesting Charles Evans Hughes. Arthur William Brown's collars are bluer than Percy Hammond's.

That beauty parlor for hand on west Forty-Fifth street. Frank Fay has the most graceful hands I ever saw on a man. And Helen Morgan's on a woman. You can't dine out without seeing Karl Kitchen. Or go to a first night and not see Sailing Baruch and Dennie McSweeney.

Funny anything not modern now looks old-fashioned. Roy Howard walks pie-footed. The New Amsterdam has not been the same to me since the passing of A. L. Erlanger. Nor has the Empire since Frohman died. Odd how vivid personalities beglamour steel and stone.

Bond houses no longer advertise losses are impossible. And not likely to for years. Those sadly fluting frogs in the south end of Central park at sundown. And the toss of yellow haze over the White Way. Usually find Damon Runyon around Lindy's at night.

Marie Dressler suggests one of those waddling undershot English bull dogs. Just as Wilton Yackeye does a tired bloodhound and Joe Frisco a pug. Those glow-worm lights in the cheap dance halls. Midnight foreign language classes. Bon jour, Mlle. Dame!

Among characters of de luxe speakeasies is the peripatetic jewelry salesman, about the only fortunate to dispose of jewelry these days. He carries stock in various pockets and makes it his business to horn in on parties that have grown convivial. The head-waiter or manager may be the accomplice. The big spender with a beautiful doll as a companion is his meat. He jockeys around to showing her some of his wares—"nothing to sell, of course, just carrying these to show a customer in the morning." Jewelry takes on an added glamour to the tipsy. They always want it and with an equally tipsy companion on hand usually get it.

At the pinnacle of the bull market there were about 700 branch brokerage offices around town, spearding from Wall Street buses. Now they have dwindled to a comparative handful and are as comparatively deserted. The expenses of many branches totaled $4,000 a day.

* * *

I am told that the first uptown brokerage branch was in the Hotel Astor. In the closing months of 1929 there was scarcely a hotel of consequence in town that did not have its board room—indeed even some quiet family hotels had them. Hospices like the Pennsylvania, Biltmore and Roosevelt had two and three. The new Waldorf was to have nine.

The expense of operating huge brokerage establishments staggers the imagination even in opulent days when stock gambling was rampant. One of the biggest so called "wire houses" in the street had an overhead of $100,000 a day. Much of this was due to instant contact with all parts of the world. Members of the firm could pick up receivers among the battery on their desk and be in instant telephonic communication with Cincinnati, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and also London, Paris and Berlin.

From the Musical Courier. "Every night through the thick walls there came the muted strains of the most difficult pieces, played with the skill of only a master pianist. Not until recently was it learned that the artist was one of America's most famous writers who wrote them to secrecy."

And they laughed when I sat down at the piano.—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct 9—One could hardly have expected Senator Ellison DuRant Smith, of South Carolina, to keep silent during all this stirring controversy in the country over cotton.

For the senator is recognized as an expert on the subject. The cotton state delegations in both the senate and house talk a lot when the subject is brought up in congress, but one of the last words seems always to rest with Smith.

Down south his constituents know him as "Cotton Ed"—the man who obtained his knowledge of agriculture between plow handles. It is perhaps his dominating interest. There's hardly a bit of cotton legislation passed by congress in the last twenty years that does not bear the Smith stamp upon it in some place.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, once said that Smith was surpassed by no man in his knowledge of cotton farming and his devotion to the interests of the nation's farmers.

He has been studying the subject for its past thirty years. Except for four years in the state legislature, he had held no public office until he was nominated for the senate in 1908 by one of the largest votes ever recorded in South Carolina for that office.

But he had held other jobs which probably got him more votes than public office. He was one of the prime movers in establishing the Southern Cotton association in 1905 and was for three years agent and general organizer for that body.

His knowledge of cotton is based not only on intensive study, but also personal experiences as a cotton farmer.

Those who sat with him during the senate's investigation of the 1927 cotton slump were convinced that the South Carolinian had a real grasp on the economics of cotton.

Now serving his fourth term in the senate, Senator Smith shares with the late "Pitchfork" Ben Tillman alone the distinction of having been chosen by his state for more than three terms since the close of the Civil war.

He also is rather proud of the fact that once during his time in the senate he was elected chairman of a major committee during a Republican administration.

A combine of Democrats and insurgent Republicans made him chairman of the important interstate commerce committee while he was serving his third term. Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, was the man slated for the post, but because he sponsored the Esch-Cummins transportation law, the insurgents found him objectionable.

The senator is the son of a minister. Two of his brothers are ministers—one a bishop. Two of his sisters also married ministers.

GOES TO WORKHOUSE FOR STRIKING WIFE

Clifford Lewis, 29, of Fleetwood street who, the police say, tossed bricks, cans of soup, or whatever happened to be handy, at his wife, was given a sentence of six months in the work house at Columbus by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin yesterday afternoon when he was found guilty of an assault and battery charge brought by his wife in municipal court. He was also assessed the costs in the case.

Lewis was arrested at his home early Wednesday night where, according to the police, he had beaten his wife. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Municipal Judge Martin yesterday morning and was held under $200 bond for a hearing yesterday afternoon. He was taken to the workhouse today to start his sentence.

NAME DELEGATES TO MISSION MEET

Mrs. H. L. M. Thoman of Blaine avenue.

A program hour was dispensed with yesterday because of the lengthy report given by Mrs. Petri of the seventh biennal synodical convention in Zanesville Sept. 28 to Oct. 1.

Mrs. B. Tyler Gates was named chairman to arrange for a thank-offering pageant on Sunday night, Nov. 29. The society voted to send a box of needed supplies to a missionary settlement in Virginia. The society will meet Nov. 5 with Mrs. Gates at her home on Hellefontaine avenue.

BALD EAGLE PUT ON DISPLAY HERE

A bald eagle, confiscated yesterday by O. H. Niemeyer, deputy state game protector, was placed on display today in the display window of the Van Atta Hardware company on west Center street. These birds are very rare in this section of the United States. The bird was shot in Richland county during the past squirrel season. It is more than four years old, Niemeyer stated today, as the bird's head is white. A bald eagle's head does not turn white until it is more than four years old.

After being on display here a few days the bird will be turned over to the state department of conservation.

then flew to Boston, to save souls, depression or no depression.

Mr. Cyrus H. K. Curtis' reporter described Aimee, the soul saver, as dressed in "an ensemble of powder blue."

How glorious to fly on your honeymoon to a nine-day revival that will send to heaven many that were headed the other way.

You can imagine how Mrs. Aimee when she gets to heaven will surprise some kind lady angel who has been there a long time.

The angel will say, "Now, darling, put on your wings, you know you are going to fly up here."

Mrs. Aimee will reply, "I'm from Los Angeles and flying is old stuff to me. I flew up to get married, flew to Boston to save souls, and at a rate of speed that would make you people open your eyes."

STOCK RALLY LED BY RAIL ISSUES

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—Stocks went over the top again today in a buying drive led by the rail issues.

After considerable profit-taking in the first hour, when sales totaled 800,000 shares, the market got into strong hands and rushed upward with a vigor that put the tape several minutes behind the active trading on the floor of the stock exchange. There was much Wall Street gossip over the possibility of a decision appearing over the week-end from the interstate commerce commission on the railroads' plea for a 15 per cent freight rate increase.

Quickly erasing the early losses of $1 to $2, prices of many shares rose buoyantly above Thursday's close.

HISTORY OF CHURCH GIVEN AT MEETING

Missionary Society of Calvary Observes Rally Day.

The early history of the Evangelical church was given by J. K. Hoffman of Klinefelterville, Pa., yesterday afternoon when the Woman's Missionary society of Calvary Evangelical church met in the church to observe Rally day.

Hoffman, who is visiting near here, owns the home in which Jacob Albright, founder of the church, died.

The church was decorated with flowers. Mrs. John Ruth presided and the devotional period, which included the scripture reading, a leaflet and a solo, was led by Mrs A. L. Wood. Mrs. Ruth led in prayer.

The lesson on "Missionary Endeavors" was conducted in question and answer form by Mrs. C. R. Beerbower. Mrs. E. E Radebaugh gave "The Experiences of a Missionary Pioneer." Miss Pauline Zachman played a piano solo.

Members gave a demonstration of "The Line Shall Not Break Where We Stand," the slogan of the meeting.

TO HOLD SERVICE AT COURTHOUSE

Local pastors and members of other churches are attending the revival campaign at First Pilgrim Holiness church. Services will be held tonight at 7:30 at the church and Saturday at 8 p. m. on the courthouse espianade.

Rev. F. W. Cox, pastor, is conducting his own revival and for the last two nights has preached from the Fifty-First Psalm. He named the three kinds of joy on which he wished to speak, natural joy, unnatural joy and supernatural joy. He showed some of the reasons why King David fell from grace and remarked: "David stayed at home when he should have been at the battle's front."

Lodge Meets.

Arrangements were completed for the initiation of a class of candidates and entertaining the district deputy, T. S. Brindle of Ashland at the meeting of Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks last night. One application was balloted on. The next meeting will be in one week.

HOOVER CREDIT POOL INCORPORATED TODAY

Banks of Country Respond Readily to Call for Co-operation.

made public today. In part the plan said:

"It is contemplated that one or more groups or associations of banks will be set up in every federal reserve district. Each group or association will be composed of the subscribing banks within the area covered.

"Each director of the corporation is to undertake the responsibility or organizing the groups or associations within his federal reserve district.

"Each such group or association is to have its own local committee which is to pass upon the loans requested by any of its members and upon the security thereof."

With stocks, cotton and grain prices pushed upward already under the stimulus of the proposed organization, Mr. Hoover was notified that it would be formally incorporated immediately.

Soon thereafter the enormous strength of its pooled resources will be injected into a nationwide offense to free frozen assets for commercial trading.

Some Opposition Develops

A preliminary hint of opposition to some phases of administration's legislative program has come already from Senator Glass of Virginia. The former Democratic secretary of the treasury gave notice that he would oppose proposals to include railroad real estate and industrial securities in paper eligible for federal reserve rediscount.

As chairman of the senate banking investigating committee, Glass has been studying this very problem and is prepared to cooperate for some liberalization of the federal reserve system.

Senator Glass contends that banks are not taking advantage of facilities now offered by the federal reserve system. In September, he said, member banks held $3,196,000,000 of eligible paper while they were borrowing only $147,000,000.

OIL SHUTDOWN ENDS IN OKLAHOMA FIELD

Murray Threatens State Competition If Crude Price Does Not Go Up.

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 9 —A pall of uncertainty over oil industry of Oklahoma lifted today with an announcement of Governor William H. Murray that he would open the flush fields of the state tomorrow morning.

Shut in since Aug. 5, under military rule, the Oklahoma City and Greater Seminole districts will be allowed to produce under probation orders, although the military supervision will continue.

Murray's announcement of the opening came last night upon the heels of his threat to open "Bill Murray filling stations" which would sell state-refined gasoline made from $1 a barrel crude, if such a step proved necessary to bring them the $1 top price he had demanded for reopening. The current top price is 70 cents a barrel.

Decision to reopen the oil fields was made after a conference by Governor Murray with bankers and producers. Opposition to the shut down had been increasing for a week.

HOOVER RULES ON WAR DEBT CUTS

Will Consider Reductions Only If Europe Curtails Armament.

that prolongation of the moratorium beyond next June would involve a loss for France of 2,500,000,000 francs ($2,000,000,000) annually and would mean the government would have to raise an equal sum in order to balance the budget.

In his insistence that European armament limitations shall be the price of former relief in war debts by America, President Hoover has the outspoken support of Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee.

Generally among congress members, however, judgment is being reserved on proposals to extend the moratorium.

Many American bankers with foreign investments are known to favor a lengthier moratorium.

The annual number of applications for patents in Czechoslovakia has increased steadily since 1923 and last year exceeded 10,000 for the first time.

DISCLOSE CAPONE INCOME CONFESSION

Letter Introduced To Show He Admitted Liability on $226,000.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—An admission by Al Capone through an attorney that he was liable on a four-year income of $226,000, has been brought to light by the government in its attempt to convict the gang chief as a federal income tax dodger.

Documentary evidence, intended to show that Capone once confessed this liability, was put into the records of Capone's trial yesterday, over the strenuous objection of defense counsel. It included a neatly typed two-page letter, treated by all concerned as a highly important document, the contents of which, however, remained a secret to the jurors at the end of the third day's session of the trial. But the world in general knew that the letter was signed "Lawrence P. Mattingly," that it was addressed to the internal revenue bureau, and that it contained the alleged admission by Capone that he was not only liable but willing to pay tax on the $226,000.

The jury heard a witness identify the letter and heard the court rule that it was admissable. But Judge James H. Wilkerson, at the close of session, asked the prosecution to withhold the reading of the document until later.

Another Expense Cut.

DELAWARE, Oct. 9—Ohio Wesleyan students have given the high cost of living another wallop. The first varsity dance of the year will be given tomorrow with admission price reduced to 25 cents a person. In previous years the dances here cost one dollar to a dollar and a half a couple. The "five and ten" dances, as the students have dubbed them, are not date affairs so that either men or coeds may attend without a partner.

BOMBING CHARGED TO CHINESE ATTACK

TOKYO, Oct. 9—Japanese authorities declared today the bombing of Chinchow, Manchuria, by Japanese airplanes was in retaliation for an attack upon the planes by Chinese troops. Mukden headquarters of the Japanese army asserted in a statement that Chinese troops had fired upon the planes while they were on a reconnaissance tour, whereupon the Japanese replied yesterday with bombs. Other than stating "considerable damage was inflicted," Japanese communiques gave no intimation of casualties. Foreign dispatches to Peiping and elsewhere, however, placed the toll at from two to 20 dead.

University buildings, the temporary seat of the Manchurian government, were damaged, other sources reported. The Japanese cabinet had the incident under consideration.

URGE APPOINTMENT OF MRS. MORROW

Movement Started To Have Widow Named for Senate.

By The Associated Press

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 9—The "Mrs Morrow for United States senator" 'cry raised by members of the Women's Republican club of Ridgewood, gained momentum today as persons prominent in New Jersey politics approved the suggestion.

Mrs. E. B. Thornton, president of the Ridgewood organization, wrote in behalf of the club to Governor Larson asking him to appoint Dwight W. Morrow's widow to his unexpired term, as "she represents the highest type of American womanhood."

Mrs. Morrow helped her husband conduct his senatorial campaign last year and often spoke over the radio and at club rallies.

If appointed, Mrs. Morrow would be the second woman to receive such honors. Georgia sent Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton to the senate for 22 hours on the death of Senator Thomas F. Watson.

FEDERATION FAVORS 2.75 PER CENT BEER

Sentiment of Labor Convention Appears To Be Against Repeal.

By The Associated Press

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 9 — Organized labor's demand for 2.75 per cent. beer crystallized today at the American Federation of Labor convention and committeemen indicated resolutions for outright repeal of the Eighteenth amendment would be sidetracked.

Matthew Woll, chairman of a labor committee working for congressional sentiment to change the Volstead act, explained that 2.75 per cent. beer would be of the same strength as the Canadian draft beer sold here, and not the "dishwater" some delegates had thought.

"By 2.75 per cent. beer I mean about 3.10 per cent. by volume," he said. "Just like the ordinary Canadian beverage. I am not referring to bottled beer or the stronger ales."

President William Green, who also favors legislation of 2.75 per cent. beer; W. J. McDonough, head of the Building Trades union, and other leaders indicated most discussion of resolutions dealing with alcohol would take place behind closed doors of the resolutions committee. However, leaders of the "wet wing" girded for a possible battle on the convention floor shortly.
